

ACCESSIBILITY POLICY

Updated April 2018

ACCESSIBILITY

Thank you for visiting the G3G website. We seek to meet the W3C Web Content Accessibility Guidelines and our accessibility features are listed below. Our website is tested on a regular basis using a combination of automated tools to identify potential problem areas and manual testing to ensure we meet the spirit as well as the letter of the W3C's accessibility guidelines.

Alternative Text

Images on our website have alternative text attributes, often known as alt text. This means that when an image is used on a web page to convey information its content is also described in the alt text. When you use alt text the image can be understood by text browsers and assistive technologies such as screen readers. If an image is used for purely decorative purposes, the text attribute is left empty in line with accepted best practice.

Readable and Resizable Fonts and Layout

The fonts on G3G have been chosen for their legibility on computer screens. The layout has been designed to stretch to fill the width of the browser, so that you can resize the browser to suit your own viewing preferences.

The G3G website uses font sizes that you can control using your web browser.

Minimising the use of Images

Live text is used rather than graphics wherever possible to reduce page download time and to increase your control over text size.

Please note that the G3G website contains links to other Internet websites. Those websites are not owned, operated, controlled or reviewed by G3G, and their webpages may not be fully compliant with our Accessibility Policy. Please direct any questions or concerns to the website's owner.
